On to Washington.

The official route for the Kentucky delegates to the Christian Endeavor Convention which meets in Washington July 8-13 is the L. & N. to Cincinnati and B. & O. S. W., and B. & O. from Cincinnati to Washington, a rate of one fare for the round trip has been secured, or $14.55 from Winchester, sleeping car rates will be $3 per berth from Cincinnati or $1.50 per person when two occupy the same berth. This will be one of the best C. E. excursions ever conducted from the State members of the State Executive Committee will give it their personal attention.

Each coach and sleeper will be in charge of a manager who will provide C. E. entertainment during the journey. Ladies traveling without escorts will be placed in charge of chaperones, who will accompany the delegation. A representative of the lines, thoroughly familiar with the many points of interest along the route will accompany the excursion and see that the trip is made a most delightful one. The hotel rates at Washington will be $1 per day, European plan. Private Home entertainment, including meals can be obtained at from $1.50 to $2.50 per day, for each person. Circulars pertaining to this excursion have been sent to Rev. A. J. Arrick of this city who will cheerfully give any information desired.

Election of Trustees.

The election held last Saturday for the election of school Trustees was quiet and resulted in the re-election of the old board, L. T. Chiles, H. R. French, Owen Laughlin and T. J. Bigsaw and Dr. R. Q. Drake, an excellent board.

I have put up a grill mat on Grassy Lick with all the latest improvements making the best meal and will do custom grinding, beginning Saturday at 6 o'clock in the morning.

JOHN PEROS.

Jim Williamsism.

The Courier-Journal isn't in a good humor about the unseating of the regular delegation from the 48th Legislative District, and to tell the truth, few, even among the extreme silverites, can blame it for bitterly resenting the outrage. So far as we have talked with the Montgomery county delegation we have not found a single man who has not expressed regret for this act on the part of the Lexington Convention.

The Courier-Journal says: "No more shameless and execrable outrage was ever perpetrated in politics than the expulsion by the Lexington convention of the regular delegation from the Forty-eighth District, comprising the Sixth and Seventh Wards of Louisville, and the admission in their stead of the crowd drummed up by the notorious Jim Williams."

"It was an outrage to the like of which a Democratic convention in Kentucky never before descended."

"It was an outrage the equal of which would be hard to recall in all the course of disreputable and unscrupulous 'practical politics' in either party."

"It was an outrage to which it would be practically useless to seek a parallel

There were about 300 of them there to vote for a sound money delegation, and there is not one of them who does not know that every pretension that the silverites had anything approaching a majority is preposterously false.

"It was perfectly patent that beyond about a dozen silverites who were considered reputable citizens of the district, the Williams gang was made up of less than a hundred hoodlums raked up by Williams and his man Gray from the rat holes of the town, fully twenty or thirty of whom left the hall before Williams attempted to put his programme through, and most of whom were paid off in a saloon at 25 cents a head after the convention adjourned. Williams' little gang was so weak that not one of them asked a division, and after Williams had tried in vain to usurp the powers of Chairman Buchanan and rush a snap delegation through, he stood at his corner of the platform shouting incessantly to his crowd to 'Howl! me down!' but there were not enough of them to make a respectable chorus to Williams' yawn and when he went through the form of putting his slate through after the adjournment of the convention there were not two dozen men who participated in the farce."

Death of John R. Blount.

Mr. John R. Blount died at his late residence near Grassy Lick on last Saturday, the 6th instant, from flux, in the 69th year of his age. He was born in Nicholas county October 24, 1827, and moved to this county in December, 1873. January 20, 1850, he was married to Miss Louisa Irvine, who, with two children, Frank H. and John H., survive him. They had four children. W. K. died January 26, 1884, and Mrs. Mary L. Shanklin died August 23, 1889.

Mr. Blount was a successful farmer and in his political, religious and business life as well worked and acted according to a practical theory. He had always been a Democrat and was a strict adherent to party principles. He became a member of the Baptist church when quite young and had been a reader of the State religious journal, the Western Recorder, for more than forty years. His funeral was preached Sunday afternoon at the Baptist church, this city, by Rev. Everette Gill, and was buried in Macedonia cemetery. The wife in declining years, children and grandchildren have the sympathy of their host of friends.

Excursion to Natural Bridge to-morrow.

Chief of Police Wilson Assaulted.

On Saturday night several of our young men, among them Chief of Police Charles T. Wilson, donned their linen suits and boarded the 9:35 train for Olympia, intending to spend Sunday at Olympia Springs. On the train a man was so boisterous that the conductor called Wilson, whom he knew to be an officer, to his aid and put the man off. Two others who were with the fellow, promised to behave themselves if allowed to remain on the train, and this being all the conductor desired, they were allowed to ride to their homes at Olympia. When the train had pulled up at Olympia, one of the men, Pergam, picked up a rock and threw it at the conductor. The rock passed through the train. This offense constituting a felony the conductor called on Wilson to arrest the offender. Wilson walked up to his man and informed him he was his (Wilson's) prisoner. Pergam did not think so and showed fight. Wilson thought his man only about his equal, physically, and proceeded to whip him into submission. It was a pretty tough conflict, Pergam, so Wilson says, putting up a mighty good fight. At this stage a man named Thomas ran up with a fence picket and began belaboring Wilson over the head and back. This was more than Wilson could stand and he reached for his pistol, only to find that he had dropped it in the scuffle. When Pergam and Thomas saw Wilson go for his gun, they left and stood not on the order of their going. The boys who had accompanied Wilson up to Olympia knowing that he would shoot and seeing the fellow belaboring him thought a killing the next thing in order and did not stay to see what might happen. Fortunately for all concerned the officers pistol was not at hand. Wilson, who is himself as brave as the bravest, rather admired the pluck of Pergam and would willingly have submitted to a good pounding from him if he was not able to best his man in a fair fight, was thoroughly angry when the man Thomas attacked him in so cowardly a manner from behind, and did his best to find a gun, his intention being to arrest the fellows at every hazard.

The two men, Pergam and Thomas, were arrested and will have their trial to-day. Chief Wilson was not much hurt, though some of the boys who were with him got scared and telegraphed his friends here he was dangerously hurt. Mr. Wilson is one of the best and most quiet and gentlemanly police officials we know. The most that can be said against him is, that utterly fearless, he takes too many chances with desperadoes.

A woman's headache may come from several causes. She may have a headache arising from nervousness, or from digestive disturbances. Nineteen cases in ten, her headaches come from disorders peculiar to her sex. It may show itself in the symptoms which are characteristic of a dozen disorders. Thousands of times women have been treated for disorders. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was compounded for the sole purpose of relieving womankind of these ills and pains. Thousands of women have testified that after taking treatment from several physicians without benefit, the "Favorite Prescription" cured them completely and quickly. It has been used for over thirty years, and has an unbroken record of success. The woman who hesitates is invited to send 21 one-cent stamps to cover only the cost of mailing a copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, which contains plain, clear information about all of the organs of the human body and their functions.

Go on the excursion to-morrow.

You Need a Decent SUIT.

You need it now. Don't spoil your credit by a seedy outfit. Look like prosperity if you would have folks think you are prosperous. A good Suit of Clothes don't cost much these days. We have good serviceable Suits as low as $5.00.

But we advocate the better ones at $10 and $15. We will take pleasure in showing them to you.

Perfect Wisdom

Would give us perfect health. Because men and women are perfectly wise, they must take medicine to keep themselves perfectly healthy. Pure, rich blood is the basis of good health. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the One True Blood Purifier. It gives good health because it builds up the foundation—pure blood.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, always reliable and beneficial.

Remember the great excursion to Natural Bridge to-morrow.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes and peaches, a year old, fresh as when picked. I use the California Cold process, do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh and costs almost nothing; can put up bushel in ten minutes. Last week I sold directions to over 120 families; anyone will pay a dollar for directions when they see the beautiful sample of fruit. As there are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident any one can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and complete directions, to any of your readers, for eighteen two-cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc., to me.

More

Curative power is contained in Hood's Sarsaparilla than in any other similar preparation. It costs the proprietor and manufacturer more. It costs the jobber more and it is worth more to the consumer. More skill is required in its preparation and it combines more medicinal qualities than of any other medicine. Consequently it has a record of more cures and its sales are more than that of any other preparation. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine to buy because it is an honest medicine and thousands of testimonials prove that it does actually and permanently cure disease.

The Evergreen Baptist Church will be dedicated next Sunday afternoon, Rev. Everett Gill of the First Baptist church will preach the sermon at 3 o'clock. Our colored friends deserve credit for the promptness in building their new house of worship. It is a handsome frame structure of modern style and will seat about 350 people.

Mrs. J. H. E. Jepson's music class will give a recital at Mrs. Jepson's residence on North Mayeville street this evening, beginning at 8 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to every one.

A FLORAL LOVE STORY.

Pais Marigold a maiden was. Sweet William was her love.
Their path was twisted with Bitterweet; it did not run through The Ladies' Tresses raven were, her cheeks a lovely rose.
She wore the Lady's Slippers to warm her small pink toes.
Her Pique was an Elder who had a Mist of gold.
An awful old Snapdragon to make one's blood run cold.
His temper was like Sour Grass. His daughter's heart he wore in his hand.
With weeds both rose and bitter-hee had he
an altar.
The lover's hair was like the Plume of pure gold type.
His was a Dutchman's Brooch; he smoked a Dutchman's Pipe.
His seat Marshmallows by the pond and choicest Watercress.
She painted him Forget-me-nots, the bluest ever seen.
His cousin's ascended her within the Night
shade dark.
For every Thyme he tried it her father's Dog
every bark.
And so he set a certain day to meet at Four o'clock.
His face was pale as Snowdrops, even whiter
than her frock.
The lover wore his Pina and if he should say him no.
And then he up and kissed her beneath the Mistletoe.
"My love will live Forever. My sweet, will you be true?"
Give me a little Heartsease; my angel, I love
you true!
She fathered that for him alone she'd orange Blossoms wear.
Then prayed the apple Willow and Torie her Maidenhair.
Free Maiden that a hornet before them stood her Pity.
Who wears his Queen the fellow until he made his trip.
Oh, quickly up Rosemary. She cried: "You lie the day.
Most cruel father. Hate, my dear, and let this day away."
But that instant moment he spied his Bitch red hair.
He settled all flirtation between that hapless pair.
The father, a mountainous stout and domed a black Monkhood.
The maid as Pison Ivy and died within a week.
—Catherine V. Glen in Ladies' Home Journal.

THE YELLOW BONNET

A yellow mist of sunshine drenched
the hill slopes that faced the south and hung low upon the dewy valleys.
The undulant tuster of the azaleas illuminated the banks of the limpid streams like a cloth of gold with a cord of silver running through it, and rich clusters of gaudy golden red were tasselled along its hem.
The raw places on the half tilted follows where the wintry torrents had swept were bathed in yellow accounted by tufts of better wood of a deeper orange.

It was early morning among the Cohabatas, and the world was a symphony in yellow.
Riding leisurely along the narrow road that wound through the woodlands, at a turn in the road I saw just ahead one of those quaint old apple wagons whose dingy yellow color matched the color of the pair of shallow steeds that drew it along at a snail's pace, the slumberous vehicle lurching from side to side with the rocks and ruts.

Plodding alongside was a swart mountaineer, whose tawny whiskers and broad slouched hat concealed the face which he hastily and furtively turned toward me as my horse battered over a stone.
Now and then he would give the wheel a lift as it sank in an unusual deep rut or struck a protuberant boulder, scowled with the marks of whorled travel.
"Good afternoon," said I, as I checked my horse.
"How d'ye do?" drawled the
mountaineer.
"Rather warm traveling,"
"Yas, purty hot, but I've used to it."
"Traveling far?"
"Pends on what luck I have," he answered, eying me askance after the fashion of those people who are rendered suspicious by being hunted down for years and years by revenue officers.

Just then I caught a glimpse of the face of the driver, turned full upon me, and from beneath her blue eyes shone with a wondering, speculative look, and her cheeks glowed with the only bit of reddening color in the sallow count. She appeared to be a girl of 16 or 17, with a fair, healthy face framed in a mass of ruddy hair that matched in iridescent splendor one of her own mountain sunsets. It was Nancy Lee, the maiden moonshiner.
"Are you emigrating?" I asked the man, returning to the subject and attempting to draw him out.
"No," he said shortly, his tawny face growing dark because of his misapprehension of my query. "I'm from Rabun county, and I've got a load of apples and cabbages. That's what I'm doing."
"Excuse me," said I hastily. "I did not mean to inquire into your business. I am prospecting through the country and just thought I would pass the time in a chat as we are traveling in the same direction."

"Oh," he replied in a tone of relief, "I don't know. So many spies and informers now days. Never can't tell. Best to be on a fellow's guard."

"Do you sell many apples?"
"Sometimes we do. So we want to get streak and sell out. Then again we
hafter drive thoo to Atlanta and
then peddle them out on the streets
for nuthin' at all, but we manage to come out 'bout even. But we want to come to travel than hit do."

they at home. Neighbors don't charge no 'nother nuthin' for a little grub when they get tight run, an there's allers or grassfed handy for the steers this time a year."

"It is a good long drive to Atlanta."

"Yes, for a feller that's in a hurry. We take our time and kiver the 200 miles 'thout feelin' it."
"Bligned to do sum'n'y, y' know."
"Well, do miles from the highest railroad, an the hills is mighty high thoo the Cohabatas, whar it's up hill all the way thar and back," and a feeble attempt at a smile gave his wrinkled face a grotesque expression.

"Pretty hard to make a living under these circumstances, eh?"

"Yes, purty tough; but, y' see we don't need much. We raise a few cattle in the mountains an our cabbages an potatoes an our own corn —but that ain't no money in it."

"How about making moonshine of
it?"

"I don't know a cussed thing
'bout that," he replied, his face darkening again. "Ef y' wanten for to get any 'nother money in it, you'll have to be a detective. They's the ones what does the devilment an packs it off on us poor farmers—daburn 'em—jist to git their costs. Every infernal son of a bargeen 'n'er credit he hangs."

"Again the bright eyes of the maiden in front were turned upon me,
and a quick movement of her right hand disclosed the gleaming barrel of a winchester rifle concealed under a part and wagon seat.
"Well, I have nothing to do with that," said I in a conciliating way,
"only I believe they ought to leave you alone. It is a small matter for a big government to make such a fuss over."

"I've jist sayed, stranger. It is a mighty small thing. Ef they knowed how hard it is to make a livin in these mountains, they'd be easier on us, and ef they 'low us to still our own apples we could pay the revenue jist as well. People in a wagon, an we could sell it out quicker an git our money back, but they won't let us alone. Informers as thick as fiddlers in a bad place.
They's meamer by a durned sight than the revenue men. People didn't uster cheap on no 'nuther, but ther's so durned many 'n'em gone over to the Yankees now 'em can't gin'erly tell jist who is an who isn't."

"Now, when my dady fust come to Georgy, ther wa'n't no revenue, an a feller could make jist as much licker as he wanted to, an it war good truck, too, an none of your fightht sell."

"He measter sell it at f'fteen a gallon an make money on it. Now, here I am, hafter haul a load of apples an cabbages hundreds o' miles over the mountains an don't git pay for the feed o' my steers if I had ter pay it. I hearn a feller reed in the Berkeley circle one of the heres
'bout them perfection an free trade schemes of the politicians. Them's jist what we fellers needs, an ef I ever cyast another ballit it'll be for the man what's ther perception an free trade. Ef the government'll perfect us an git us free trade, we don't care a dodd nor no outside comptition. We kin reed the Declaration of Independence then shorn."

"But free trade and protection are different things. They are just opposite."

"That may be so in your neck o'
the woods, but we need both in Rabun county, an the man what runs that ticket'll carry every single one of these quain old apple wagons, an he'll be a big un, rechin' from Little Hinwassee to the Tennessee line."

"Is there any mining going on in your section?" I asked to change the subject a little.
"No, sir, none no minin. Most o' the men who owns land in my de-strict have got their land posted.
When Jim Rankin war in Atlanta las' fall he jist cyast studs stuck up in the windows o' the grocerries
whar he was allowed in here,
an he begged a feller out o' one un 'em, an he kerried it home to Rabun, an his neighbors said it war jist the kink an had somestruck off an most in ginerly now you'll find ther hands posted, so minin ain't no more in it. It works war fur we ain't pestered with no fur W'y, one feller had the impudence to cuss President Buchanan fur a Know Nuthin, an we resented it, an
the community, giv' us jist till sun up to git out, an he got."

"Why do you object to the miners?"

"Because while they ain't no black licker in them regions yit
the men Jim Rankin bo'ed with in Atlanta said the reason they put up their yards war beca'se the min-ers'd come in there an drink ther licker an then go an cheep on 'em, an they give 'em f'fteen a ton to sell. So we want to get a good streak and sell out. Then again we
hafter drive thoo to Atlanta and
then peddle them out on the streets
for nuthin' at all, but we manage to
come out 'bout even. But we want
to come to travel than hit do."

"Hold up, you there!" came in ringing command, and two horsemen dashed up from behind with rifles leveled at the mountaineer, and a buggy with two other men followed furiously.

"Stop that wagon!" cried one who appeared to be the leader. "You've got it aboard. You're a good one, Jim Rankin, but we've got the evidence this time."

I caught a glimpse of the buff sunbonnet as the wearer disappeared in a haze of thick smoke from the unobscured by the many arrivals and the gleam of the rifle barrel which she held in her hands as she made good her escape. I knew that there was some mischief afoot, for I had not forgotten Nancy Lee.

With an air of open vindictiveness the mountaineer stood aside, while the revenue officers began to rummage about among the apples and cabbages.

"Here, Joe, help me with this applebox for a million."
Here's a couple of fat jugs of the regular mountain dew. Here's 't'her or keg. Pretty well heeled, eh, Lemuel? Well, you'll get to Atlanta a good deal quicker than you would with these yaller oars. Your way will be paid, and you'll get to ride in the first class car, Lemuel.
How do you like that, old hoss?"

The mountaineer said never a word, but there was a grim smile on his rugged features that boded no good for the captors.

"Here, Joe," said the chief deputy,
"you and Jasper take charge of the wagon. We'll take Lem to Dai-ton and catch the train. Be careful now, these features in the truck. You know Trammell is mighty careful how we manage these things. Let's have a snifter, however, before we break up. Stranger," turning to me for the first time, "would you like a drink of the real truck?"
I politely declined, and bidding them good day rode on toward Spring Place, whither I was bound.
As I crossed the Amicola river I cast a glance of wonder and admiration on the awesome beauty of the scenery scenery brought out in strong relief by the yellow flood of light from the declining sun which ebbed and flowed around the craggy cliffs, all festooned with drooping laurel and rhododendron.

Such a sudden change of the scene glor I thought I caught a glimpse of a yellow sunbonnet and one with gleam of two blue eyes ablaze with wrathful excitement, but as the vision was but for an instant I charged it up to my overwrought imagination.

Reaching the mountain village, I entered the hotel, and after an exchange of greetings and a polite excuse for refusing a proffered snifter I sat down in the chair of state on the long piazza to rest my wearied limbs.

Pretty soon I observed an un-wonted stir about the courthouse, and strolling over there in the deepening twilight I saw in the center of an interlocking circle one of the heres of the episode of the afternoon. He was bareheaded, and the blood was dripping from a wound in the forearm made by a bullet.

"Yes," he said, panting with fatigue, "we arrested Lemuel Rankin, but he got clear away. We overtook him about three miles beyond Am-icola river an found three kegs and half a dozen jugs mixed up in the load of apples an cabbages. Joe Green an Jasper Hicks were left to fetch the wagon, an me an Johnson an old Lem got in the buggy an started to Dai-ton."

"We all took several drinks around afore we broke up an war feelin purty good, lafin at old Lem, an we drove into the ford of the Amicola."

"Just as we riz the bank this side the frin began. Ther must 'a been a dozen, for the bullets whistled permiciously. The boss wheeled around an round an the river, dingin us all out, an old Lem scambled up the river bank an disappeared in the horri bushes."

"Johnson's hurt bad, shot through the shoulder. I got a swine in the arm, an I guess it'll be sore for some time."

"No, we didn't see a soul an didn't hear a word said, but my God, how the bullets did whistle!"
Over the distant barrier of the mountains I looked the person of the night, floating the earth with the golden glory of the harvest moon.
Then I thought of the faring yellow sunbonnet and the blazing blue eyes that I had caught a glimpse of
at the crossing of the Amicola. It was the shining couch of my
"symphony in yellow."—Atlanta

YACHTING ETIQUETTE.

Rules Governing the Conduct and Attention of Yachtsmen on the Coast.
The yachtsman called on me one day this week, and we talked boating.

"Etiquette of the yacht is as sober as a rule as I know," said he. "I have been a yachtsman for 25 years, and in rowing past a boat I can tell whether she is in charge of a yachtsman or a fisherman. A fisherman can sail your boat and keep her ships, but she will still look like a mackerel-man."

"I remarked that there is no etiquette more rigid than the etiquette of yacht life. Any yachtsman can tell by the way a boat rounds to in a fleet and comes to anchor whether the skipper is to yacht's deck born or whether he has steeled around in a coaster and drawn the lines over a fisherman. It is just the same as in a ballroom. You can tell the difference by the way they move."

"Take the etiquette of flags. Of course the owner has his private signal, either square, swallow tail or triangular. Then he will have his club pennant and of course the regular yacht flag. Other flags are for decorative purposes."

"If he is cruising, he carries the yacht flag (an ensign with a foul anchor in blue in place of the stars) flying at the peak. If he is lying in ports he flies yacht flag at the masthead above the boom on the staff, or if he has no staff he has the foul anchor on the foremast. When the owner is aboard, the owner's signal is flying. When he is aboard, a blue flag should fly at the cross-tree on the starboard side.

When he is at his meals, fly a white square flag in place of the blue.
When the crew is at table, fly little triangular red flag on the port side.
A schooner yacht always flies both the white and the blue signal.

"Steamers come under the general rule of sailing craft so far as etiquette goes. We were passing Mr.
Morgan's magnificent steam yacht,
the Corsair, last season. I was directed to blow the whistle to salute
it."

"It was my plain duty to obey, although I knew it to be contrary to the rules of the New York Yacht club. The Corsair draped her flag in reply. Mr. Vanderbilt was on board our boat, and he asked me why the Corsair did not answer the salute."

"She did, sir," said I. "It is not a salute to blow a whistle. The only recognized salute is by the flag.
It is not good yachting form to blow
a whistle at another boat."

"When we came in, we steamed alongside the Corsair, and Mr. Vanderbilt went aboard, presented his compliments and explanations.
"I know no life with more of romance and adventure, year in and year out, than the life of a yachtsman, and I have lived to see the schooner yacht practically displaced by the sloop and the English steamer with the size and appointments of a ship become the fashion of the yacht. I sailed years ago the sloop Coming, one of the biggest sloops in American waters—the marvel and the monster. How long do you suppose she was over all? Less than 80 feet."—Lawson Journal.

How Dias Painted Nature.

He has worked lovingly and searchingly over the remote woody haunt in which his figures stand, and now, with the contrast of the color and enchanting visitors, he lets his love of gorgeous hues spring out and have free play. Tube after tube he empties upon the palette, brush after brush is snatched up by his nimble fingers, and the colors that he does not come swiftly enough, and the palette knife is called into service.
The paint goes on in layers, and the silvery flash of the dryad which he paints grows warmer and firmer, the color of her hair grows brighter, the drapery fluid from her shoulder takes in one bold, passionate stroke
a quivering life of color into its texture, and the picture is complete, the record of an inspiration begun in meditation and developed further and further until the fervor of the artist rises into a species of happy intoxication, and you get the ravishing art which makes Diaz a master.

Cost Defenses Unnecessary.

"It is perfectly fascinating," Maud exclaimed, to read about the proceedings of the court.
"I suppose it is interesting," Mamie answered with a sigh, "but it's rather hard to understand."

"Yes, but that's where the enjoyment comes. You find out so many things. I never recollect that a short time ago how greatly we are in need of cost defenses."

"I don't think we need them at all," Mamie replied with emphasis.
"Why, of course, we do."

"I know better. A brake is only in the way. If you come to a hill so steep you are afraid to coast it with one foot on the front tire, the only thing to do is to get off your bicycle and walk."

And Maud admitted that this was a view of the subject that had not been presented to her.—Washington

A Call.

The Democrats of Montgomery county are requested to meet at the Court House in Mt. Sterling, Ky., Saturday, June 13, 1896, at 1 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of selecting delegates to attend the Congressional Convention at Beattyville, June 18, 1896, to nominate a candidate for congress in this, the Tenth Congressional District.
H. R. FRENCH,
Chairman.

In this issue we announce Mr. Will. A. Young, of Morehead, as a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney of the 2nd Judicial District. Mr. Young is not unknown to the people of the District, and more especially to the people of Montgomery, where he spent several years of his boyhood and early manhood. He is a growing young man, full of energy and push, and promises the people of the District a faithful discharge of the duties of the position if they will elect him. Mr. Young has had quite an extended experience in criminal practice since he entered upon the practice of his profession. His ability and his industry have gained for him quite a lucrative practice at his home and he promises the people of the District the same faithful service in their business that he has given his clients in his private capacity. Mr. Young submits his claims to the Democratic party. He asks the people of the District to give him the honor he craves and he will do all that lays in his power to prove in every way worthy the trust.

Mr. Young hopes for and of right expects a warm support, especially from the people of this county, since he has many friends among our younger business men and has never purposely done anything to make an enemy of any man in our midst.

In this issue Hon. James H. Williams, of Frenchburg, announces for Commonwealth's Attorney, subject to the action of the Democratic party. Mr. Williams is a Democrat, identified with his party's interests, a capable lawyer, honest and attentive. As a politician he is well informed and able to meet any man the Republicans could name, and discuss the issues of the day with fairness and ability. He will go before the people with the solid backing of his county, and should be the choice of his party will be an easy winner. Mr. Williams is a popular man, an able lawyer, and would see that violators of the law received the punishment prescribed by law; they would have no easy time to escape. Menefee county has been very modest in her claims for public favor, which will be a point favorable to Mr. Williams.

Silver in The Lead.

Up to this time 34 States and Territories has so far indicated their choice for delegates to the Chicago Convention. These give Silver 427 votes as against 195 for Gold with 2 votes from Massachusetts doubtful. This estimate places Maryland solid in the gold column, though some of her 16 votes may go to silver. There are yet 13 States and Territories to hear from. A conservative estimate gives out of these to silver 136 and to gold 147 votes, leaving 15 votes doubtful. According to this estimate silver will go to Chicago with 563 votes and gold with 342 votes, with 17 votes in the doubtful column. The probabilities are this estimate is very nearly correct, and the result will put very 10 votes either way from the estimate given.

This means the silver people will have no difficulty in organizing the convention and in making a platform, these motions only requiring a majority while the two-thirds rule applies to the nomination.

The white metal party is sweeping everything before it in the conventions held by the States to appoint delegates to Chicago. This movement has taken hold on the people and is beyond all question going to dominate at the national convention. That it will sweep all before it in November, as it is doing in the Democratic primaries, is a thing by no means improbable. The masses know there is something wrong and are blindly hunting a remedy. They have tried high protection and it has failed. They then asked for a tariff for revenue only and the party in power did not have the courage to carry out its pledges. Now where the free silver people offer a panacea for all ills the voters are not unlikely to take hold of the idea and try it. Free silver is the catchiest bait to get voters that has been thrown out for a long time.

Democrats of Montgomery County.

Do not fail to keep in your minds that the convention to select delegates to attend the District Congressional Convention is called to meet here next Saturday afternoon. Do not forget that Hon. Thomas Turner, who has always been a strong advocate of bimetallism, is a candidate, and by reason of his life-long and consistent advocacy of these views is entitled to the support of this district in his race for Congress, and should have a solid backing from his home county.

Hon. W. J. Seitz, of Morgan county, candidate for Republican nomination for Congress, addressed the Republicans of this county at the Court House Saturday. His audience was principally of the strong scented kind. Mr. Seitz is a typical Republican and preaches the doctrine of his predecessors—right or wrong. He is a forcible speaker and met with a hearty welcome at the hands of his party here, and will more than likely receive the support of this county.

A Cutting Affair.

Yesterday afternoon Jim Taylor, a colored man who works as a kitchen hand at the National Hotel went to his home on Sycamore street just East of the colored Methodist church, and found one George Hamilton, another darky, who works for the Monarch Milling Co. in his wife's room. Taylor was naturally indignant and while the woman ran out of the room Hamilton behind him the bed. Taylor pulled the bed from over Hamilton, who came at Taylor with a knife, cutting him once in the side, dismembering him, another gash in the neck barely missed the carotid artery, while a third vicious thrust laid open the muscles of the forearm. For sometime past Hamilton has been causing trouble between Taylor and his wife, Hamilton's own wife having left him because of his connection with the Taylor woman. After the cutting the wounded man was taken to Dr. Taulbee's office, where his wounds were given attention. Hamilton was arrested by Chief of Police Wilson and Mr. D. T. Apperson, whom Wilson had summoned to his assistance, and taken before Judge Turner who set the examining trial for to-morrow morning.

I have three first-class buggies which I will close out very cheap.
W. W. REED.

COMING!

Dr. Alberto Diaz, Cuban Apostle and Exile.

Dr. Alberto Diaz, "The Apostle to the Cubans," and at present, a political exile from Cuba by the command of Gen. Weyler, will address the people, of Mt. Sterling, next Friday evening at the Baptist church. Dr. Diaz was a Captain in the last Cuban rebellion before the present one, but in the meanwhile has been converted from Catholicism to the Protestant faith, and is now pastor of the largest Protestant congregation of Havana. He has been falsely accused of conspiracy in the present rebellion and was arrested, and was in danger of his life, but being a citizen of the United States was rescued. This is an occasion of unusual interest for the people of our community. The address is free for all.

The seventh annual Christian Endeavor Convention of the State of Kentucky which met at Paducah last week, was in many respects the best ever held in the State. Paducah Endevorers had been at work for months preparing for it, and gave the delegates a very cordial reception. There were between 300 and 400 delegates in attendance. Reports from the various societies in the State indicate that good work has been done during the year. One of the best features of the past year has been the mission work in the State Prisons at Frankfort and Eddyville. The Endevorers are making our Penitentiaries what they were intended to be, places for repentance. One of the features of this convention was the evangelistic services that were held each day at the shops and factories throughout the city. Prof. Amos H. Lewis Howe, of Vt., Prof. Amos H. Wells, editor of the Golden Rule, Boston, and Rev. John E. Pounds, of Indianapolis were present and delivered addresses. The old officers were re-elected, and all Endevorers have entered upon the work of the coming year with renewed consecration. An earnest effort is being made to secure the International Convention for Louisville in '98.

A queer kind of a man who could but would not talk, was arrested here last week for breaking into freight cars. He made no defense and was sent to jail in default of a $500 bond to await the action of the grand jury. The evidence that he was a robber was several watches, notes, etc., which he carried on his person.

LATER.—Mr. A. A. Hazelrigg, County Attorney, has received a letter from C. E. Weaver, of Green-up county in answer to one written to him regarding a note for $25 found on the person of the queer man. The letter says the note is genuine and that it was stolen from one George Spencer on the night of May 31st. The same night a gold watch was stolen from a man by the name of Thompson. A horse was also stolen the same night and several houses burglarized. Mr. Weaver requests that the prisoner be held until authorities can reach here.

The stockholders of the North Middletown and Mt. Sterling Turnpike Co. will hold a business meeting at the Court-house, this city, June 15, at 2 o'clock p. m.

Spoons Free to All.

I read in the Christian Standard that Miss A. M. Fritz, Station A, St. Louis, Mo., would give an elegant plated hook spoon to any one sending her ten two-cent stamps. I sent for and found it so useful that I showed it to my friends, and made $13 in two hours, taking orders for the spoon. The hook spoon is a household necessity. It cannot slip into the dish or cooking vessel, being held in place by a hook on the back. The spoon is something house-wives have needed ever since spoons were first invented. Any one can get a sample spoon by sending ten 2-cent stamps to Miss Fritz. This is a splendid way to make money around home.

Very Truly,
46 131, JEANETTE S.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE

CLARK CIRCUIT COURT, KENTUCKY. Jas. Flanagan, & Co., Plaintiffs, against Safety Building & Loan Co., Defendant.

By virtue of a Judgment and order of sale of the Clark Circuit Court, rendered at the May term thereof, 1896, in the above cause, I will expose to public sale to the highest bidder,

On Wednesday, June 24, 1896. A tract of land in Montgomery county, Kentucky, bounded on the East by a dirt road, on the South by the Donaldson Turnpike, on the West by the lands of Robert Ware and on the North by the lands of Mrs. Tarley, containing about 350 acres.

On the same day, and after the sale of the above described land, I will expose to public sale, to the highest bidder, a tract of land located on the waters of Stoner Creek in Clark county, Ky., and bounded on the East by the lands of Jack Evans, on the South and West by the lands of Elijah Moore, and on the North by the lands of Elijah Moore, containing 146 acres.

On Thursday, June 25th, 1896. I will expose to public sale to the highest bidder a tract of land in Bourbon county, Ky., bounded on the East by the North Middletown and Thatchers' Mill turnpike road, on the South by the same road, on the West by John Redmond and on the North by the Scott heirs, and being adjacent to North Middletown, and containing 20 1/2 acres.

On Saturday, June 27th, 1896. I will expose to public sale to the highest bidder a house and lot of land in Winchester, Ky., on the West side of Boone Avenue, and bounded on the East by said avenue, being the same property formerly occupied by John Hall, and now occupied by James Epperson.

All of said property being now owned by Wm. Wade. The land in Montgomery county will be sold on the premises at 11 o'clock, a. m., on a credit of six, twelve and eighteen months. The 146 acres of land in Clark county will be sold on the premises, at 2 o'clock p. m., on a credit of six and twelve months. The land in Bourbon county will be sold on the premises at 11 o'clock, a. m., on a credit of six months. The house and lot in Winchester will be sold at 2 o'clock p. m., on a credit of six months.

For the purchase price the purchaser, with approved security or securities, must execute bonds bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a Judgment. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

J. M. BENTON, Master Commissioner Clark Circuit Court.

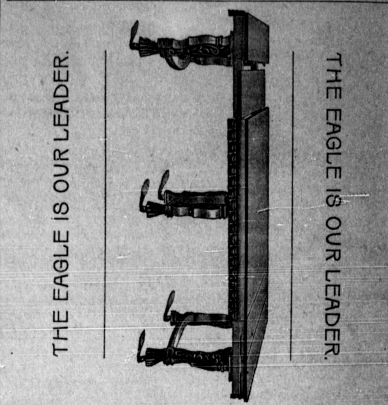

Stockholder's Meeting.

The stockholders of the North Middletown and Mt. Sterling Turnpike Road Company are requested to meet in the County Court Room in Mt. Did You Ever Make Money Easy?

Mr. Editor.—I have read how Mr. C. E. B. made so much money in the Dish Washer business, and think I have beat him. I am very young yet and have had little experience in selling goods, but have made over eight hundred dollars in ten weeks selling Dish Washers. It is simply wonderful how easy it is to sell them. All you have to do is to show the ladies how they work and they cannot help but buy one. For the benefit of others I will state that I got my start from the Mount City Dish Washer Co., St. Louis, Mo. Write to them and they will send you full particulars.

I think I can clear over $3,000 the coming year, and I am not going to let the opportunity pass. Try it and publish your success for the benefit of others.

Children's Day.

The first Sunday in June is observed as Children's Day by the Sunday-schools. The good women of the Christian church had prepared a beautiful program of recitations, songs, short speeches, etc., for the entertainment of the children. The lessons were dispensed with and the program carried out to the pleasure of all in attendance. The beautiful flowers, only less beautiful than the bright faces of the lovely little children, added much to the pleasure of day. The collection was a decidedly pleasant feature, superintendent and teachers being agreeably surprised at the amount of the offering. God bless the little ones.

Nervous Prostration

Cured by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Prolonged derangement of the nervous system not only affects the brain and mental powers, but develops disease in some of the vital organs. The most dangerous of these indirect results is when the heart is affected. This was the case of the Rev. F. S. Surfax, Fawn River, Mich., who writes under date of Feb. 14, 1895:

"Fourteen years ago I had a slight stroke of paralysis. Overwork brought on nervous prostration. I was exceedingly nervous and the exertion of public speaking caused heart palpitation that threatened my life. I used two bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine and feel better than I ever expected to feel again. I can speak for hours without tiring or having my heart flutter as it formerly did, and I have you to thank that I am alive today."

From the Chronicles of Hanna.

And behold, Bill-the-Still stood in the presence of Hanna, the Profit, and of Kohlisaat, the Chief Scribe, and he was much like unto the meekness of a lamb led to the slaughter.

And he was sore distressed, looking first at Hanna, the Profit, then at Kohlisaat, the Chief Scribe, and there was exceeding pleading in his eyes, as if he were imploring them.

But they heeded him not, for they were busily intent upon their own matters in which Bill-the-Still had no concern as they wished it.

Yet he spoke not, for on the mouth of him there was a muzzle preventing speech, and Hanna, the Profit, had control of it and would not let it be taken from him.

And there was a ring in the nose of Bill-the-Still with many strings to it. Verily, verily, it was so by reason of these things that Bill-the-Still was a spectacle of exceeding sadness.

And it came to pass that Kohlisaat, the Chief Scribe, drew nearer to Bill-the-Still and observed him and Bill-the-Still was greatly rejoiced thereat.

And he stretched out his hands to the Chief Scribe, saying: Is it to be that this muzzle is to be removed from me?

Thereupon Hanna, the Profit, pulled the string of the ring in the nose of Bill-the-Still which he held in his hands and turned away from Kohlisaat, the Scribe, saying: Whither are we drifting?

And Kohlisaat, the Chief Scribe, was wroth with Hanna, the Profit, and said unto him: Wherefore do you do this thing? Is he your slave?

Then Bill-the-Still bowed his head unto Hanna, the Profit, and stretched his hands unto Kohlisaat, the Chief Scribe, for he felt in his heart that the Chief Scribe was a kinder master.

And Kohlisaat, the Chief Scribe, was moved by the condition of Bill-the-Still, and he said unto Hanna, the Profit: Let him speak, I pray you for the time is ripe.

But Hanna, the Profit, shook his head and took another turn on the muzzle that closed the mouth of Bill-the-Still.

And Kohlisaat, the Chief Scribe, in no wise abated, said yet again unto Hanna, the Profit: Let him speak, I pray you, for the reason is at hand when it should be known of all men, that our Man, the High Priest of the tribe of G. O. Pier, is in his heart favorable to the money which is sound, and from the fullness of the heart the mouth speaketh.

Then was Hanna, the Profit, exceeding wroth with Kohlisaat, the Chief Scribe, and obtruding his chin and oscillating his shoulders saw the manner of the Hittites, he said unto him: Chusee it, Cully, I'm runnin' de machine. See?

And Hanna, the Profit, snapping his fingers, whistled, and Bill-the-Still came to him and lay at his feet.—New York Sun.

A FARM FULL OF MONEY.

Prof. Gudgeon in Busy Digging up Dollars.

He Finds a Large Crop of Silver in His Backyard, and is Harvesting It.

Middletown, O., June 4.—Prof. Gudgeon, of Jacksonburg, eight miles west of this city, is busily engaged in digging up ready-made wealth. A few days ago he noticed the edge of a silver dollar sticking up from the ground in his back yard. He got a shovel to dig it out, and with the first spade full of earth he was astonished to find that he had shovelled up dozens of other dollars also, which were just under the surface.

Gudgeon then kept on digging, and though he declines to name the exact amount of money he has unearthed, it is understood the amount will run up into the thousands of dollars. The only explanation that can be given of the discovery is that in 1860 Nancy Beard, a wealthy widow, lived and died in a house which stood at the location of the buried treasure. She was known to be possessed of a great deal of cash, and when she died and her executor took possession of her estate and effects, he found all her stocks and securities in tact, but $10,000 in cash was missing which should have been on hand, according to her well-kept accounts. A diligent search was made for the lost money, but it could not be found. In time the matter was forgotten, and has only been recalled by Prof. Gudgeon's discovery.

Meanwhile, he keeps on digging.—Cincinnati Tribune.

As Hannibal's burying place is haunted for between Soutair and Nicomedia in Asia Minor by a German expedition, a Mr. Antony Psychar sends a curious story to The Academy. "It is now some forty years since I sat conversing with a friend in his villa on the shores of the Bosporus. That friend was Dr. Stephen Carathodory, one of the chief physicians to Sultan Mahmoud, and the father of the ex-Governor of Crete, a man, who apart from his profound learning, was so highly respected for his character that even among the Turks themselves every Pasha's door was open to him, and he was welcome everywhere. 'Something very strange happened to me yesterday,' said the good Doctor to me; 'very strange and very vexatious. I had gone to pay a visit to a Turk of my acquaintance on the Asiatic shore, at Ulema residing at the village of Tchenguiz-Kiot, and as we sat chatting together in his garden he at one asked me who and what Annibals was. 'How come you to ask me such a question,' said I to him, 'and what do you know about the man whose name you just now mentioned?' 'I know nothing about him,' replied the Ulema, 'but the men you see here at work at the back of my house dug up the other day from under the foundations a large marble slab with some letters cut into it, and out of curiosity I sent for the village grocer (bakshi), who was known to be able to read, and that's the name he told me was engraved upon the marble stone. I am sorry I cannot show this to you, for it has since been ground into powder.'"

Judge George B. Eastin, of Louisville, died Thursday in Rome, Italy, of congestion of the brain.

Five years ago no well known woman in the west and world had ridden a bicycle through the streets. This machine was then generally considered to be vulgar. If a clubman had ridden it to his club on a bicycle and chided it to the railings, as he is chided to do now, the committee would have disapproved of his conduct, and he would have been a marked man among his fellow members for life. One winter several Parisian women of doubtful status commenced to cycle, and their example was immediately followed by the fashionable women of that city, and today seven men and women out of ten in the west end of London ride on this machine through the streets and in the parks.—London Truth.

As Improved.
The voice of the speaker, round, full, sonorous, yet exquisitely modulated, was heard in the remotest corner of the vast auditorium.

"What in the orderly sequence of anthropological phenomena emergency evolutions, the resultant effect of which is to decompose into their original elements the ligaments of nationality that have characterized the relations of one segregated portion of mundane society with another and to justify the portion thus segregated in arrogating itself among the cognates of governmental entities constituting the aggregated mass of humanity, the disjunctive and equidistanting intrinsicality to which the prescriptive regulations of deleterious organic routine and of the supreme organizer thereof render the individual composing them the legitimate claimants, a decorous consideration for the formulated judgment of aggregated humanity places upon them the obligation of avouching the predisposing influences whose operation has superinduced the dichotomy."

He was a Boston eloquist reciting the Declaration of Independence.—Chicago Tribune.

"Caddy" knew a thing or two. A cab was driven to the Twenty-fourth street entrance of the Hoffman House, and two young men, evidently in the third year of a spree, got out and walked toward the entrance. Both were laughing and apparently enjoying a huge joke.

"Wait for us, driver," said one as the doors swung behind them. The driver looked after them, while a look of deep wisdom came into his face, which was emphasized when he laid his finger alongside of his nose in a knowing manner.

He didn't wait—there. He got on his box and hurriedly drove around to the Broadway entrance and drove up to the curb just as the two young men made their exit.

"Drove round to meet you, gentlemen," he said. "Where do you want to go now?"

"Well, I guess we'll settle up and not go farther," said one of the men, from whose face the former smile had fled.

They did settle up, and caddy drove away whistling. "You can't lose me, Charley," said New York Herald.

Peacefulness and Vegetables.
An objection urged against vegetarianism is that it would make us too peaceable. A mixed diet is supposed to give restlessness, energy and love of domination, and, therefore, to give to races which adopt it some advantage over others which do not. The connection of food with racial character—if there is such a connection—is a matter which can not now be discussed. The savage eats his enemy's heart because he thinks he thereby acquires his enemy's mental qualities. We know that the analogy is a false one, but we sometimes reason much in the same strain. The Anglo-Saxon race is supposed to acquire its energy from the quantity of meat which it consumes. We might with an equal show of logic contend that our energy is due to our drunkenness or our love of gambling. If national predominance be a desirable thing, that race will be the fittest to survive which has the greatest intelligence and the highest physical efficiency and which practices the greatest economy in the use of its resources.—Westminster Review.

Statements Recommended.
The fortune teller did not recognize the young woman as a former visitor, and that was where she made a mistake.

"You will have quite a romance," predicted the fortune teller after the usual preliminaries, which consist principally of the transfer of a sum of money from one person to another, "and in the end you will marry a light gentleman and ever after live happily with him."

"How about the dark one that you said I was to marry when I consulted you last week?" asked the young woman, with very natural curiosity.

"Yes, yes, of course," answered the fortune teller. "It seems a little conflicting, doesn't it? But it's easily explained. The gentleman is dark complexioned, but light hearted."—Chicago Post.

A GOOD LAND ROLLER.

It is easily and cheaply made and does satisfactory work.

"Last winter it came to me that I was in great need of a land roller, but how I could expend $25 or more for a roller when my crops were so poor and prices low was a problem not easily solved. I visited a young farmer living to another part of the town who had built a roller, taking the wheels of two old mowers for the foundation and connecting them by the turning rod of an old horse-power. The wheels were drilled and two inch maple staves were bolted on. I would probably have made use of his pattern, but every one who had an old mower within a day's journey would not part with the wheels. When they heard what I wanted them for, they all wanted to build rollers."

This writer a correspondent of Rural New Yorker, who accompanies his remarks with a sketch of a wheel of his own invention that suits him better than mowers wheels. He says:

"It is easily made and does away with the laborious task of drilling about 130 bolt holes through the rims of the wheels, besides a saving in bolts of nearly 45. One white ash tree, 30 inches across the stump, furnished material for roller and frame. The staves are sawed, beveled from 3 inch plank at the mill. I used three foot wheels, which makes a 8 1/2 foot roller. The staves are spiked to the heads with No. 30 wire spikes, and an old wagon tire is shrunk on the ends, which may be fast by the blacksmith and set at home.

"The frame is laid together by bolts. The axle or shaft is a piece of ordinary water pipe 1 1/2 inch outside measure, supported by a strong piece of iron or steel between the two sections. The cutter bar of an old mower is just about right for the support. The frame will balance with a man standing on the rear plank. I built a hopper directly over the shaft, to weight with stones when desired. My roller was in use two months from the date of cutting the green tree. The only expenses were for sawing, blacksmithing, bolts and spikes, all of which did not exceed $3."

FRAME ROLLER.

Pole Lima Beans.

An Ohio correspondent of the Ohio Farmer, writing from a bean growing section, tells how immense crops are grown on a small area. The majority of growers in this section stick to the pole lima.

Growers have access to tons of fish offal. Often the ground is prepared and marked three feet each way and poles only three feet high are stuck. The beans are not allowed to go above these, but are kept pinched back. Holes are dug next the poles and some of the offal put in and covered over. This stands about two weeks before the beans are planted. Do not plant until the ground is warm enough to insure quick germination. If this fish offal cannot be procured, the field must be made rich with well-rotted stable manure or pure humus, or a fish brand of commercial fertilizers will give equally good results. When ready to plant, follow rows and stick two beans in each hill, close to the pole, with the eye down. Never drop lima beans like corn for the roots start at the eye, and if dropped in any way some of them come bottom up; others never grow at all and the field is uneven all season.

Cutting Seed Potatoes.

Judging from reports of results obtained and the various statistics, whole tubers give larger yields than pieces cut into one and two eyes. There is the danger, however, in planting large tubers that too many stalks will appear. We append for the benefit of the general reader one of the tables from an Indiana station bulletin:

Principles That Ought to be Observed in Laying the Drain.

I have had a good deal of experience in laying tile and have always found that the water line, or water test, is always the safest. Where there is not sufficient water to run all the time, water must be drawn and poured in the drain to establish it. The first principle to consider should be, "Is there sufficient fall?" Too much fall is not desirable. There should be just fall enough, so the drain will be kept cleaned out. In laying the drain two principles should be adhered to: First, the drain should be kept as straight on the bottom as possible, - i. e., an even grade all the way with fall enough to keep the water running; second, the drain should be laid out as straight as possible from beginning to outlet, says a writer in Michigan Farmer.

Where drains are anyway flat on the bottom, and say 80 or 100 rods long, it is the safest plan to put in catch basins or wells. I prefer the latter. I dig down 18 inches below the bottom of the drain and sufficiently wide so that when finished it will be about three feet in diameter on the inside. The well should be curbed with stone. Build a little above ground and make a good board cover. This well is very convenient when you wish to admit other drains. Keep the well cleaned out and you may know your drain is all right.

For much economy is often practiced in using small tile where larger ones are needed. Tile should be as straight as possible, with two good joints and as few joints as possible. It is poor economy to buy inferior grade of tile. One tile in a drain flattened half an inch determines the capacity of the drain from where it is laid to the terminus of the drain. The same is true of one soft tile. I give it as my opinion that three inch tile is as much to be used in a drain. The benefits derived from mud drainage are too well known for me to make any comments. All may know that surface washing takes away the best of the soil; also that open ditches are a nuisance.

Cure For Onion Smut.

According to The New England Homestead, rotation of crops is the first remedy, as the smut seems to remain in the soil several years and may be spread through it by harrows, weedeas, rakes, by the feet of men or animals or by being washed from higher to lower ground. Starting in soil free from smut and transplanting to the smutted soil, if no other is available, is perhaps the best and simplest remedy, while the transplanting onion yield enough larger plant earlier crops to warrant the expense on that account alone. Flowers of sulphur and air slaked lime, mixed in equal parts and sowed with the seed, may have a preventive effect. Of course all smutted onions, leaves, etc., should be gathered and burned, or they will spread the spores by the wind.

A Round Silo.

A round silo situated in the barnyard of a barn similar to the diagram was visited the past winter and reported upon by Country Gentleman. The owner is more than pleased with it, and it is a satisfactory fact that many are planning to build similar ones in their barnyards during the present season. The openings for throwing out the material are located in the corner A. There are about three of them. The first one 3 feet from the bottom and the rest about 4 feet apart. It will be noticed that the rest of the now can be utilized, and that there is virtually no lost space, since the triangle at A is needed for throwing out the material. A silo 14 feet in diameter and 24 feet high would cost, allowing that it had settled one quarter, about 2,700 cubic feet.

In examining the silo referred to it was noticed that the staves were entirely dry on the outside, and it was the opinion of all who were present that this method of construction would do away entirely with dry rot, which is so destructive to thick walled silos.

Cost of Corn Per Bushel.

A report issued by Secretary Coburn of the Kansas board of agriculture gives particulars in regard to corn raising in that state. The average cost of corn in the 45 natural corn counties of the state is $3.31 an acre, not counting interest or rent, and $5.71 including this item. The cost of corn per bushel for 23 years has averaged 14 1/2 cents, including rent or interest. The average price in this period has been a fraction over 27 cents a bushel. The cost of production, not including interest or rent, has been between 8 1/2 and 12 cents a bushel, according to the yield per acre. An average yield of 37 bushels per acre at the average price gives the farmer a fair return for his work and about 13 per cent on his investment.

Cutworm Destroyed.

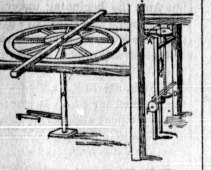

The following is recommended by the Florida Fruit Grower: Mix three pounds of pure Paris green with an ordinary quantity of wheat bran. This mixture may be done dry, taking great care that the Paris green is equally distributed throughout the bran, or the green may be dissolved in water and the bran stirred in, making a uniform mixture. Three pounds of sugar or as many cups of molasses may be added as an appeal to the sweet tooth of the worm to take a fatal ration of the mixture. Put a handful of the mixture on a piece of board or strong paper at the base of each tree, plant or vine and the cutworm will be practically harmless, for he will soon be dead.

HOMEMADE HORSEPOWER.

A Canadian Device Recently Described and Illustrated by Ohio Farmer.

The sketch illustrates a horsepower mounted on a farm floor in Blyth, Ont., and used in that section of country with satisfactory results for cutting straw or corn fodder. The large wheel in diagram is 13 or 14 feet in diameter, made of wood. The hub of the big wheel is 4 feet in diameter, made of inch boards nailed together with square hole in center to fit post. The spokes, eight in number, are 2 1/4 inch hemlock scantling, bolted to hub with two three-eighth inch bolts in each. The rim is made of three tiers of inch boards, over the middle tier one inch, in order to make groove for chain to run in. The post A in diagram is 6 inches square, hard wood, rounded off at each end to run in bearings on floor and in overlay. The big wheel is fastened on post high enough for horses to walk underneath. The chain B is a size heavier than common ply chain to keep chain taut.

The jack in illustration is made from the gearing of an old Buckeye mower. It is shown fastened to post in barn. A wooden pulley 15 inches in diameter, with groove for chain and bolted to ratchet wheel, originally on the main shaft of the old mower. D is a board gearing and F is a wooden pulley bolted to cog wheel for belt or rope to connect with cutting box. X is the tightening pulley, hinged at (x) with weight G attached to keep chain taut.

United States Oranges.

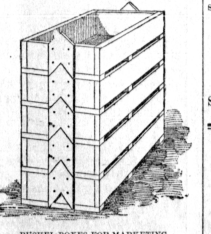

It looks as if the near future would be the orange market of the United States well supplied. According to The Farmers' Review, the California orange crop for this year will be about 2,800,000 boxes, worth about $5,000,000. These oranges grow on 10,000 acres of orange orchard. But there are said to be 80,000 acres of new and unbearing orange orchards in California. In Florida the great frosts of last year killed the orange trees over wide areas. The trees were cut off at the stumps and are now growing up, and some of them are scheduled to begin to bear in two years more. Altogether it appears that a great many trees of this kind of fruit are in process of growth.

Cabbage Root Maggot.

A correspondent of The American Agriculturist writes: Last season I had some 3,000 cabbage plants. As soon as they were attacked by maggots I soaked a plug of ordinary chewing tobacco in about four pails of water and added a good tablespoonful of crude carbolic acid. Then with a small mouthed sprinker I put a little around each plant regardless of whether it was affected or not, and immediately they vanished and there was no more difficulty.

Market Crates.

Crates and boxes come handy for taking produce to market. When there is only one tier in the wagon box, no precautions are required, but for a number of tiers placed one above the other we need something to prevent the upper ones from sliding about. A bashed box much used by Iowa market gardeners and originally sketched and described in The Market Garden is made of white wood or good pine, as follows: Take two side pieces a half inch thick, 5 1/2 inches wide, 36 inches in length, and two end pieces 1 inch thick, 5 1/2 inches wide, 12 inches long. The bottom can be made in one or more pieces. The angle pieces at the ends of boxes, as shown in accompanying sketch, are a half inch thick, fastened with four screws. After the box is made up three strips, each a half inch thick and 1 inch wide, are nailed across the bottom. This makes an inch air space between each tier of boxes. Three strips of wire are then nailed around the ends and middle of the boxes, which add much to their strength. Some vegetables, like peas, heat very quickly. The air space prevents this, and is also needed to admit of a better fill. Of course the dimensions of the box can be changed in one particular case to fit the wagon in which they will be all right if made so as to hold 2,150 cubic inches. Transplanted onions are usually a month earlier.

RUSSEL BOXES FOR MARKETING.

OWING TO THE PRESS OF BUSINESS
Dr. E. P. Bender,
WILL REMAIN IN MT. STERLING AT
* COMMERCIAL HOTEL, *
UNTIL
Saturday, June 13th.

Dr. Bender has been connected with some of the largest Dental Colleges and Institutions in this country, and has no superior in his profession. He is prepared to extract, crown and fill teeth without pain, and without the use of gas, cocaine, odontol, chloroform, ether, electricity, or any sleep-producing agents, but by a method invented by Dr. Bender, and used only by himself, who is the easiest, quickest and best painless extractor in the United States to-day - so acknowledged by the dental profession at large. Where he causes pain in operation makes no charge.

Teeth Extracted Free of Charge Without Pain between the Hours of 8:30 and 9:30 Each Day.

Teeth $5.00, Teeth $8.00, Teeth $10.

Teeth Extracted Free of Charge when Plates are Ordered. Filled With All Kinds of Materials and Without Pain and at Reasonable Cost.

Many symptoms of catarrh, headache, earache, indigestion, dyspepsia, etc., are the result of decayed teeth and roots of teeth. To be cured of these aches and pains one must commence at the origin, which are the teeth and gums, which is only cured by the skillful treatment of a dentist. Those who are of a nervous and delicate condition can come and have teeth extracted and filled and feel as calm as if they had no work performed.

Dr. Bender guarantees all work and does as he advertises. Come early and avoid the rush, as his rooms are always crowded. Office hours 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day. Free hours, 8:30 to 9:30 each day.

Dr. E. P. Bender,
Louisville, Kentucky.

The event of the season—the Excursion to-morrow.

Married, in the parlors of the Commercial Hotel in this city, at 3 p. m. June 2, 1896, Rev. A. J. Arrick officiating, Mr. Charles F. Day and Miss Nora Lee Eden, of Sherburne, Ky.

Notice Dr. Bender's advertisement in to-day's issue. Notice also that he is compelled to stay over during this week to meet the rush of work coming in to him. Dr. Bender is at the Commercial Hotel.

The sermon at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning will be to the children. In the evening a musical service will be given consisting of instrumental and vocal music with a sermon on the subject by the pastor. This will be Prof. Neville's and Miss Ayres' last evening in Mt. Sterling.

Rev. B. W. Trimble, of this city, delivered the address before the graduating class of the Hazel Green Academy on Wednesday last. Brother Trimble will not be home for some days, having begun a meeting at Hazel on Saturday, the length of which will be determined by the interest manifested.

Water works, owned by John P. Martin and his associates, has been transferred to the Mt. Sterling Water Works Co. The sale will not conflict with any arrangements made for the construction of the plant, but is only a step in a preliminary arrangement by which work on the plant will have an early beginning.

The Discovery Saved His Life.
Mr. G. Calloutte, Druggist, Bensenville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. I was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about but to no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at Wm. S. Lloyd's Drug store.

In this issue of the ADVOCATE is the advertisement of the Louisville Store. This store was established here a number of years ago and from its beginning has had a large trade. It has maintained its trade by handling good goods and being satisfied with a very small margin. When goods were higher than they are now they built up their reputation and as they became cheaper the trade got them at a less price even though that was less than their cost. Then the trade was studied closely so that every person could get just what they wanted at just as cheap as the large cities. Their buyer for this firm makes very close bargains for several other large stores which enables him to buy the same as jobbers, without breaking packages, and in this way gets goods with an additional discount. Their store-rooms are on South Mayville street. Read their advertisement and notice the inducements offered this week.

Miss Chenuault's School.

The closing exercises of Miss Helen Chenuault's school at the Southern Presbyterian church on Friday evening were most highly enjoyed by the large assemblage in attendance.

The music by Miss Allie Graves' music class added largely to the enjoyment of the evening. The pupils rendered their pieces in a most excellent manner which gave great credit to their teacher. The recitations were well rendered for which Miss Helen Montgomery has the credit of their elocutionary training. This excellent school closes its year of work with expressed hope from all patrons that it may, for many years, continue to flourish and become more and more a factor for much good in the community.

The following is the program of exercises:

Louisville Tobacco Market.

Sales on our market for the week just closed amount to 1890 bbls, with receipts for the same period 3096 bbls. Sales on our market since January 1, amount to 79,300 bbls. Sales of the crop of 1895 on our market to this date amount to 75,754 bbls.

As a result of the recent favorable weather for handling tobacco, the business on our market this assumed its normal condition as to magnitude and continued in its satisfactory chronic condition as to values. The offerings of the week were in much better condition than usual and better average values were obtained than for some time past but we are not able to report any decided improvement in prices. Color is the thing now most sought after both in common and good grades and for such goods the market has been slightly stronger. The setting of the crop has been practically completed, under the most favorable conditions, and while the acreage is probably slightly under the last year, the stand is exceptionally fine.

The following quotations fairly represent our market for burley tobacco 1895 crop.

Trash. (Dark or damaged tobacco) $1.00 to $1.50.
Common colory trash, $2.00 to $4.00.
Medium to good colory trash, $4.00 to $6.00.
Common lugs, not colory, $2.00 to $4.00.
Common colory lugs, $4.50 to $7.00.
Medium to good colory lugs, $7.00 to $9.00.
Medium to medium leaf $5.00 to $8.00.
Medium to good leaf, $8.00 to $15.00.
Good to fine leaf, $15 to $18.
Select wraperry leaf, $18 to $22.00.
The above quotations are not applicable to green and frosted crops.
GLOVER & DERRICK.

The Virginia Democratic State Convention adopted resolutions favoring free coinage at 16 to 1. A resolution pledging the Virginia Democracy to abide by the action of the Chicago convention was rejected.

Public School.

The closing exercises of the Mt. Sterling High School were held at the Court House on last Thursday evening, the 4th inst. It was a very pleasant occasion and the graduates, ten in number, acquitted themselves very creditably indeed. Without going into personal mention it is but justice to say that the graduates, every one of them, gave evidence of close study and fine training. The high standing of this school is due to the management of Mrs. Nannie K. Hibler, her efficient associate teachers, and the watchful and faithful board of trustees. Mrs. Hibler took charge of this school, finding but few who would trust the training of their children to a rundown institution, but from the beginning under her management, this school has grown in public favor, until now it ranks as high as any graded school in the State.

The Mt. Sterling High School is the pride of our city. It is a place where the poor and the rich alike can obtain an education, fitting them for a life work free of charge. It is a place where ease and grace is taught and the better elements of the scholar is cultivated. It is a place where boys and girls are developed into useful men and women.

There is nothing which advances the interest of a city more than a first class public school, and our people are sure to stand by this institution. The board of trustees are alive to their duties, and whatever advancement can be afforded will be provided.

Money Made in a Minute.

I have not made less than sixteen dollars any day while selling Central Ice Cream Freezers. Any one should make from five to eight dollars a day selling cream, and from seven to ten dollars selling freezers, and all of it such a wonder, there is always a crowd wanting cream. You can freeze cream elegantly in one minute and that astonishes people so they want to taste it and then many of them buy freezers as the cream is smooth and perfectly frozen. Every freezer is guaranteed to freeze cream perfectly in one minute. Any one can sell ice cream and the freezer sells itself. My sister makes from ten to fifteen dollars a day. J. F. Casey & Co., 1143 St. Charles St. Louisville, Mo., will mail you full particulars free, so you can go to work and make lots of money anywhere, as with one freezer you can make a hundred gallons of cream a day, or if you wish they will hire you on a salary. The election of school trustee of the Grassy Lick District last Saturday was an exciting one, the contest between Harvey Greene and D. G. Howell. Greene was winner by 14 majority. Notice of contest has been filed and will be tried before County Commissioner Horton Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound of imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.
